Subject: Microsoft settlement

It is hoped that this settlement comes to a conclusion as soon as possible to avoid any possible further interjections by companies like AOL who only propose to make Microsoft look bad in the eyes of consumers. Bringing further litigation to the table is a waste of tax payer money and only furthers to separate the two companies from coming to an amicable agreement to work together to help consumers.

It seems Microsoft extends it's hand to work with AOL only to have it slapped; a thought to be considered.
